RECORD OF W. H. DAVIS AS TREASURER

Board of Control By Majority Vote Passes Name On to Council.

SPECIAL MEETING

Matter will Be Dealt With On Friday Evening, This Week.

After a discussion of half an hour, the Board of Control at the second of two sessions yesterday afternoon, decided to offer a recommendation to the city council that Walter H. Davis, Inspector of the Dominion Government Service, be offered the position of City Treasurer, with a salary of $5,000 per year. Mr. Leckie's resignation takes effect the 1st of April.

The above recommendation was not made until after the Board had followed the departure of the building committee and the Mayor. The matter had been briefly discussed at the morning session, but had been adjourned to the absence of the Mayor from the room in the middle of the most important part. This, when the Mayor was present again, the discussion was opened by the controller.

The Mayor opened by stating that Mr. Walter H. Davis had been suggested to him by Mr. Leckie. Mr. Davis had been appointed to the position with Mr. Leckie as assistant, and that the matter of reorganization of the office he left in his hands, they themselves to the position of the Mayor.

"Well," began Controller Aitchison, "for my part I agree with what Controller Davis has said. This morning, if the new man does not resign the office we will have a point in the day when the trouble with Mr. Dempster is that in the morning he is not there and is afraid to hurt someone's feelings. We want a man who will organize well at the lines we have set."

"He brought Davis in here some years ago," stated Controller Davis. "He demonstrated his real worth in a short while. Archie Kappelle, a splendid man, but it would take him from a place he is eminently fitted for."

"I make my stand here at this point," emphatically said Controller Aitchison. "If you go outside the city hall for a man, you will be advertising to the public that you are not satisfied with the man who is now in the office."

"There is a man," went on Controller Davis, "who knows the work from top to bottom. I have heard him speak of the work he has done in the Dominion Government, and I am sure he can take up the work of Hamilton at once and take it to the top."

Mr. Kappelle has not had the financial training to put in a position such as this," objected Mr. Aitchison. "He is a clever man, but his training is practical, and not this kind of work."

"You've changed your mind since this morning," said Controller Aitchison. "Oh, no I haven't," returned the Mayor. "I have always held that opinion."

"What, you mean to say that you are going to keep Mr. Davis in the office after your job?" asked Controller Aitchison. Mr. Dempster. "You think there are any financial men in the city who are better than Mr. Davis? There is a certain amount of dignity attached to the position, you know."

"His gentle relative," said Mr. Davis, "is not up to anyone to anyone," returned Controller Aitchison. "You've got the wrong idea altogether," returned Controller Aitchison. "I don't care anything like that at all."

"I think the Board might as well take Mr. Leckie's advice and get Mr. Dempster. He is well qualified," was the opinion of Controller Aitchison. This started Controller Aitchison. Mr. Leckie and Mr. Davis were considered him best qualified.

"When a man works for a city practically all his life, and does invaluable service, by so advising of the city, it is a pity to lose him. Along comes a fat job like this and you go outside to find it," said Mr. Aitchison.

"Archie Kappelle is one of the best men in the city hall," declared the Mayor. "He is so good I shouldn't want to see him taken out of the place he has made such a success of," said Controller Davis.

"Couldn't you raise him, and raise him to follow him?" Controller Davis. "What he is getting now?" The controller was informed that Mr. Kappelle received a salary of $2,000 per annum.

"Well, I think Kappelle is head and shoulders over Dempster," snapped Controller Aitchison, and he told why, impressing the Board it was his head, pure and simple. After some more discussion the Mayor suggested, as they weren't apparently getting anywhere, it would be best to leave the matter and take it up again.

having all this argument over again. That's what you'd do if you leave it, Controller Aitchison observed that no time should be lost and that the whole matter should be well known. "Why not while they were at it. Finally Controller Aitchison said: "I move that Mr. Davis be offered the position. This was properly presented but no second could be found."

more that Mr. Kappelle be offered the position," said Controller Aitchison. "I second that," spoke up Controller Aitchison. This motion was declared lost. There was a moment of silence. Then Controller Aitchison said: "Well, then, I move that we advertise for a man and give everyone their chance."

Nobody would second this, and Controller Aitchison came out with: "I move that Walter H. Davis be offered the position as city treasurer, succeeding Mr. Leckie, at a salary of $5,000 per year."

Controller Davis seconded the motion. The vote of the Mayor carried. "I tell you right now that I shall certainly oppose in the council," declared Controller Aitchison. "Why five thousand?" Controller Aitchison asked. "That is the amount over the other man."

"That is what is the recommendation," was the reply from Controller Aitchison. "You heard it." "Hold on for a minute," protested Controller Aitchison. "This thing is open for discussion. The battle is not over yet. It is not in the council. We will oppose it there. I'll warn you that in giving that increase it is a $1,000 increase for the head of every department. What does the city get for it?"

"Thirty-six hundred," supplied secretary Farr. "And the city secretary gets $5,000 and he moves for money." "You're going to find yourself in a hole when you start this thing," retorted Controller Aitchison. "There'll be no end to it. The heads of the departments are all salaried. The city clerk, for example, is paid $1,000. If for one should think them, he is paid $1,000."

"I think the city clerk is the most valuable man in the city hall," said Controller Aitchison. "He is the most poorly paid man here," observed the Mayor. "To speak frankly," declared Aitchison, "I think Mr. Davis is a $10,000 man."

"I'll say the Mayor with a weary sigh," then it is recommended to the council that W. H. Davis be offered the position at $5,000 per year. "I shall oppose it in the council," promptly repeated Controller Aitchison. "The city council of London called for the purpose of taking the matter up. This was fixed for Friday night as it is desired to have it settled without delay."

"The fight isn't over yet," assured the two labor members as the Board adjourned.

The following is a summary of the reports made by agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Surely Different

There are all sorts of different ways of bringing a thing home to people. Take the case, for instance, of a member of the Essex district council in England recently, who wanted to enable his fellow-councillors to realize the shameful disappearance of a certain cottage near by. It was so drab, he said, that times could be played on a month ago, money up and down along cracks in the walls.

FIX STATUS OF COMMERCE BOARD

Matter to be Decided By Supreme Court.

Question of Jurisdiction Over Trade.

Ottawa, March 13.—The status of the Board of Commerce as a Superior Court of Canada, challenged by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Attorney-General of Alberta, and many private firms, chief of which is Price Brothers & Co., paper manufacturers, will be decided forthwith by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Argument for all these contestants on the one hand, and the Attorney-General of Canada on the other, was concluded this afternoon in the Supreme Court in the hearing to decide whether or not the Board of Commerce has jurisdiction in its prohibition of the accumulation of manufactured goods by the manufacturers, and in its appointment of a tribunal such as the Board of Commerce, first, to decide what commodities shall be forced on the market at a fixed price, and then to proceed against merchants who refuse to carry out its orders.

The act was defended by W. F. O'Connor, K. C., Acting Chairman of the Board of Commerce, and Major Lewis Duncan, both of whom appeared for the Attorney-General of Canada. The Canadian Manufacturers' Association had the power to delegate to the Board of Commerce powers to regulate prices and to enforce the marketing of the necessities of life at such fixed prices as the act also declared not to conflict with the rights of the provinces.

W. N. Tilley, K. C., and Eugene Lafleur, K. C., argued for the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and the Attorney-General of Alberta, respectively, against the act. Particulars were submitted by the association, and other appellants against the act, and the right of property and the right of the provinces.

Mr. Tilley, and Parliament had not intended, nor had it the right, to delegate to the Board of Commerce the right to interfere with property rights which were within the jurisdiction of the provinces alone.

The arguments pro and con lasted two days, and the decision of the Supreme Court will be handed down in due course.

Contributions were raised in other cities for their relief, and the people of Massachusetts offered the Boston merchants the use of their wharves.

Cut Duty 50 P. C. on Empire-Failures.

Kingston Jamaica March 13.—The Government introduced legislation to-day for State control of the sugar traffic. The measure will be opposed on the ground that it is unnecessary.

The Governor of Jamaica Sir Leslie Popham in his address at the opening of the Legislative Council to-day, submitted a proposal to reduce by 50 per cent the duty on cotton and woolens produced in the British Empire, on entering Jamaica. This would have the effect of diverting trade from the United States to the United Kingdom.

It is proposed also to impose a tax on sugar exported from the colony, and to establish a cement factory to augment the revenue of the Government.

A loan of $1,000,000 is to be floated for carrying out works of improvement.

ARMENIA ACTS AGAINST TURKS

Adana, Asia Minor, March 13.—The Armenians closed their shops here and informed the French that they will send armed Armenians to the relief of Hadjin, northwest of Marash, where the Turks are reported to be terrorizing the population. If the French do not despatch troops there.

The villages of Roonloo and Yerehkar have been overrun, and the Armenian inhabitants have fled to Hadjin.

A telegram sent from Hadjin by one of the Armenian relief workers, says it is well there, but that the population expects to be cut off from communication shortly.

AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION OF CANADA

Discussion in Parliament Over Changing of the B. N. A. Act.

BULGAR TREATY

Should Canada Have the Power to Change Its Status in Empire?

Ottawa, March 16.—Liberals in the Commons today urged upon the Government the desirability of seeking amendments to the British North America Act which would place the sovereignty of Canada beyond question. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, outlined a position of the Opposition in discussing the ratification of the Bulgarian Treaty of Peace, when he said the Government should consider the advisability of asking the King to give power to the Dominion Parliament, subject to the concurrence of the Privy Council, to amend the British North America Act. Mr. King's statement of Liberal policy, it is understood, was decided upon at a caucus held early in the day.

Most of the day was devoted to debating a resolution asking Parliament to ratify the Bulgarian Treaty. Canada's status in the League of Nations and in the British Empire, featured all the addresses of members on both sides of the House. Although the Liberals gave the foregoing definite expression as to policy with regard to the treaty, they agreed to the ratification of the treaty at the close of the debate to-night at the termination of an address by Hon. Newton W. Rowell, President of the Privy Council. Hon. Mr. King professed his address by explaining that as Parliament had ratified other treaties at the last session, it would create a misleading impression were the Bulgarian Treaty ratified, too. Nothing had occurred in the interim to cause one treaty to be accorded different treatment than the others.

THE BULGARIAN TREATY

When Parliament was asked to ratify the Bulgarian Treaty, Mr. King said he would have expected there would have been something in it relating to Canada. However, any opinion expressed in the House would not change in any way the treaty which was signed November 27, 1919.

"Anything that this Parliament may do in the matter of approving or disapproving of the treaty will not affect a dot of a single 't' or the crossing of a 'y' in a single clause in the treaty," asserted the Liberal leader. Approval was being asked of Parliament, he said, as a matter of form. Instead of giving reasons, however, Mr. King should have asked the House to approve the treaty, Hon. Mr. Rowell, the speaker said, in reasons why it would be unwise not to approve it.

WANTING A CHANCE TO SPEAK

Two reasons were given by Mr. Rowell, continued Mr. King, for approving the treaty. One that it was necessary because of Bulgarian nationals in our midst, and that there was certain enemy property in Canada, and secondly, because it contained provisions of the League of Nations and the labor clauses of the treaty. Parliament had already approved the League of Nations and the labor clauses, Mr. King declared. Mr. King believed that if Mr. Rowell were honest with the House, he would admit that the main reason for introducing the measure in the House was to give him opportunity to make an address. Other treaties had been approved by order of Council. He assumed the House and Liberals were in favor of democratic control of all matters of foreign policy, and further, he would like to have the House express itself against Canada being bound by any treaty or agreement of importance on external affairs on which Parliament had not full knowledge.

"There is not a man in Canada," Mr. King declared, "that would give the House's present status. There is no difference of view on that point." It seemed as if Mr. Rowell were trying to convey an impression that Canada now had a new status. However, Liberals would approve the treaty because, having approved other treaties last year, the same course should now be pursued.

AMEND CONSTITUTION

The Liberal leader quoted from the Government notice of motion to show that it appeared to his Majesty's right of asking for amendments to the B. N. A. Act by the Parliament of the United Kingdom, the Government should consider the advisability of an address being presented to the King to have power given to the Parliament of Canada, subject to the concurrence of the Privy Council, to amend the Constitution of Canada in such particulars as might be done as a result of a conference between the British and Canadian authorities and approved by the Parliament and the Legislatures of the United Kingdom. He pointed out that both Australia and Canada had the right to amend their own constitution, subject to certain safeguards that were necessary to the maintenance of the British Empire. Canada should have the same right.

DANGER OF CENTRALIZATION

"What we are concerned about is the danger of developing a form of centralized imperialism. I think would be more thoroughly objectionable than the centralization of the country are concerned," declared Liberal Chief Minister. It is not the danger of imperialism in the British Empire that we object to. We wish to see the nations maintained and strengthened.

Mr. King reiterated that Canada's position had only been more clearly defined by the war. So far as the world is concerned, there is no doubt that Canada has never been so strong as it is in the British Empire. In conclusion, Mr. King declared that as long as Parliament was responsible for the Empire, Canada would feel that we were a nation, but let the sovereignty of Parliament be impaired and we would feel that the position of the country as a nation had been menaced to that extent. MINISTER OF JUSTICE CHIDES. Hon. Mr. Doherty chided the Liberal leader, because, he said, Mr. King had told a different story today than Liberal leaders did at the last session. He congratulated Mr. King on now agreeing with the Government with regard to Canada's national status. The Minister of Justice declared that notwithstanding the statements of Mr. King, the Bulgarian Treaty was not binding on the nations of the commonwealth. He explained that the signature of all the nations of the commonwealth were required. The Government had brought the treaty before the House, the Minister said, because it was anxious to maintain the principle that no treaty of such importance should ever be binding on Canada until it had been ratified by Parliament.

NO CROUND FOR FEAR

Mr. George Foster and Hon. W. S. Fielding both declared there was no ground for statements that a movement was on foot for centralization of the British Empire. "As to imperial centralization, I give it for my opinion that neither in Canada nor anywhere in the British Empire is there anything to be feared from undue centralization, because it can never be a fact in this British Empire," said the George. Hon. Mr. Fielding thought that Canada had every protection without taking part in the Peace Conference.

It was a grave mistake for Canada and other parts of the Empire to have demanded a place at the Conference. Such a course was the beginning of a policy of separation in the Empire, the end of which might not be what was desired.

TREATY APPROVED

In concluding the debate, Hon. Mr. Rowell pointed out that there were very marked differences between the Liberal and the Conservative Party. Those who stood on the question of Canada's status in the Empire, the end of which might not be what was desired. The House then unanimously approved the ratification of the Peace Treaty with Bulgaria.

RESERVATION IN PEACE TREATY

New Proposal for the U. S. Policy.

Ratification Now Expected By Some.

Washington, March 16.—A general declaration of international policy, under which the United States would view with "grave concern" any future upheaval threatening the peace and freedom of Europe, was agreed on by Republican Senate leaders today and presented as a new reservation to the peace treaty.

Intended to replace the more definite pledges of Article 19, the reservation is to be pressed in the Senate as the farthest step the Republican leaders are willing to go toward abandonment of United States isolation and participation in European conflicts. Its text follows: "It shall be the declared policy of this Government that the freedom and peace of Europe being again threatened by any power or combination of powers, the United States will regard such a situation with grave concern, and will consider what, if any, action it will take in the premises."

Senator Lenard, of Wisconsin, drafted the reservation, in consultation with other Republican leaders, and introduced it in the Senate.

Not many Democrats had had an opportunity to-night to study the new Republican proposal, and it was uncertain how much support would be derived from that side of the Chamber. Some Senators predicted, however, that it might have the effect of softening the resentment of the Administration over the Republican Article 19 reservation and win over enough new Democratic votes to ratify the treaty.

The new reservation follows the general outline of a declaration which was contained in a resolution introduced several months ago by Senator Knox, Republican, Pennsylvania, and never acted on by the Senate. Those who support it declare that while it would leave the United States free to intervene in European affairs, it also would give evidence of the nation's vital interest in any future war such as the one just closed.

It would be reassuring to France, whose delicate treaty with this country still awaits ratification here and faces a bitter fight if it is called up for action.

London, March 16.—The press and public here are more in the dark to-night regarding the actual German situation than they have been since the short regime was overthrown by Dr. Wolfgang Kapp and General Baron von Luttwitz.

A steady stream of reports and rumors poured in all day direct from Berlin and by way of Holland, but no report bears the stamp of politeness or authenticity.

A conference was held this afternoon by Allied statesmen, including Premier Lloyd George which was attended, the Pall Mall Gazette avers, by an expert on German affairs just back from Berlin. His report is declared to have been to the effect that Gustav Noske, Exeter's Minister of Defense, is with the strong man in Germany and stands a good chance of getting the situation under control.

UNIONISTS NOT STRONG FOR A NAVY

Caucus Majority Seems Keener For An Air Force For Canada.

THE LIBERALS

Did Not Discuss the Matter of the Jellicoe Report.

Ottawa, March 16.—In 10-day's Unionist caucus Senators and members of Parliament from all sections of the Dominion, with rare exceptions, advised the Government that Canadian sentiment is utterly opposed to embarking on a naval policy of any magnitude at the present time. Even though the members were informed that the British Government was prepared to donate cruisers, submarines, torpedo boats and destroyers to the value of $14,500,000, they were unwilling to accept a gift which would entail annual naval expenditure of at least five million dollars.

It was stated that when the Government was trying to economize in other directions, there would be great unrest, among returned soldiers, as well as among other sections of the population, at not having their demands met, when the country could find money for such a purpose. One who believed that Canada must adopt a naval policy sooner or later, said this in a discussion on the matter now until questions of present Canadian status, public debt and political alignments are cleared out of the way.

One Western member was of the opinion that people of the Maritime Provinces wanted but cars more than battleships, and he said that a great many people were surprised to hear such talk of a navy, when during the war it had been said so often that this is "a war to end war." The German navy is no more, and it would be hard to convince Canadians that there was a great menace from the sea. In the opinion of some of the members spoken to, after making, embarking on a naval policy of any magnitude would be equivalent to inviting the United States to start on a competitive race in naval building with the British Empire, and they thought that would be suicide for both countries.

Members from British Columbia strongly favored a policy of building up a navy, they pointed out, from across the Pacific, and members from the Maritime Provinces are divided on the need of a navy, however, thinking it was best to serve the present and future needs, and better also to spend money in the ports of St. John and Halifax than to spend it on naval construction to meet non-existent enemies.

There was a strong consensus of opinion, however, in favor of establishing a navy, and a vote was taken for the development of a national navy, which was carried by a majority of the very expert Canadian armaments developed by the war. These would be run and administered much as military camps have been in the past.

It is, therefore, almost certain that the Government will accept the voice of the caucus and do so in the naval matters this year.

LIBERALS LOOK FOR PROGRESS

At the conclusion of the Liberal caucus, J. A. Robb, Chief Liberal Whip, declared before the Liberal members had discussed the proposed Government legislation now on the order paper. This winter session, the Franchise Bill and the proposed amendments to the British North America Act, the latter resolution, it is said, will raise again the question of Canada's status as a nation, which has been frequently dealt with lately, and there is a possibility of a fight about the line that Canada is a nation she should have the right to make her constitution as desired, on the Federal Government receiving the assent of all the Provinces.

Liberal members stated that there had been no discussion of naval policy or the Jellicoe report.

HARDLY ENOUGH COUNTING FOR ARCHITECT

READY TO CONSIDER

Board of Education Ready to Deal With Subject
On Merits.

The building committee of the Board of Education appeared before the Board of Control before the Board of Control on the question of the appointment of an architect for the Board of Education and the city. The result was that, at the present time, the expense would be justified in that the architect would need a staff and office of experts in order to keep up with the work and estimates of construction materials, that the percentage added to the costs would be too large in proportion to the amount of work in sight. So the Board, thinking the committee, decided to pass it up.

The Building Committee consisted of Thomas A. McCallaghan, Frank R. Cline, George Allen, Ernest L. L. Foster, Charles Armstrong, and J. H. Foster, all of whom are on the Board.

Secretary Foster, of the Board of Education, also submitted a statement showing that, during the six years beginning with 1914, the city had paid $247,350 in architects' fees for city building, fully 75 per cent, of which for hospital work, and the average fee per cent was paid in almost every case.

Mr. Armstrong: "Boston tried it out a few years ago. But they found it too expensive. The difficulty is this: Methods of construction, materials used in construction, styles, etc., all change from time to time, and no ordinary man, in an ordinary office, under a system, can handle it, or keep up with it. Every architect's office has to employ an expert. If you appoint an expert, you appoint a man who gets a lot of experts in with him."
